Social Justice Week is coming October 13-18, 2008

The 2008 Social Justice Week is brought to the law school through a coalition of individual students and student organizations working to initiate a new dialogue among all social justice visionaries who are fighting for a just and humane world. The week brings together students, faculty, staff and community members for a common goal: to explore and expand on social justice as an integral part of every legal education and career.
