General Announcements

Lawyers for the People

The National Lawyers Guild was founded in 1937 as the nation’s first racially integrated bar association. During its 65 year history, the NLG has been an important part of the movement for economic and social justice, for real democracy, and the American people’s struggle against oppression and discrimination based on race, ethnicity, immigration status, class, gender or sexual orientation. Our aim is to bring together all those who recognize the importance of safeguarding the rights of workers, people with disabilities, and people of color; who seek actively to eliminate racism; who work to maintain and protect our civil rights; who believe that human rights are more sacred than property interests; and who look upon the law as an instrument for the protection of the people, rather than for their repression. Consistent with its commitment to ensuring fairness and equality for all people, law students, non-lawyer legal workers and inmate legal experts are full members.

The SU student chapter of the National Lawyers Guild will hold a fall membership and informational meeting on September 15, 12-12:50pm, in room 328. All are invited to learn more about NLG, the organization for lawyers who believe the law should value people's rights over property rights. Families United Network

Hello everyone,

Allow me to introduce myself and Families United Network (also known as FUN). My name is Jesse Hart. I have a ten-year-old daughter, and I am the current acting president of FUN, which is a student organization aimed at building a better support network at Seattle University for students with children.

We will be having our first member meeting at noon in the student organization's room behind the Sidebar on Tuesday, September 23. I am inviting anyone and everyone from the Law School to join us. We will order a couple of pizzas so you do not have to worry about lunch.

Although I am the acting president right now, the plan for the meeting is to hold elections for president and the other board positions. We also plan to discuss the Halloween party we are going to put together in October. We also have some other good ideas for the year. If we have enough interest, I will be putting a schedule on the TWEN site for parents who would like to sign up for play dates with some of the other law-school kids.

If any of this piques your interest, please join us for our first member meeting, and by all means sign onto our TWEN site. For all of you evening students, I want to encourage you to send me comments or suggestions about what you would like to see happen with FUN this year as well (I have some ideas of my own, but I would love to hear from you). You can email me at hartj2@seattleu.edu, or just look me up on the FUN TWEN site.

Sincerely,
Jesse Hart

DISPUTE RESOLUTION BOARD PRESENTS

The

Client Counseling In-House Competition

September 26, 2008

The Client Counseling Competition simulates a real client counseling session. Teams of two (both students will act as attorneys) counsel a client through a legal issue. The goal is to demonstrate the team's client counseling skills to a panel of judges. This DR competition will be held September 26, 2008.

Information Sessions: Thursday, September 11 at 11:00 a.m. in room 327 and 6:00 in room C3.

Sign up: outside DR office (Room 108) until Friday, September 12, 2008.

Last day to withdraw: Friday, September 19, 2008.

Advantages of participating in the Client Counseling In-House Competition:

- Critical skill for all lawyers
- Meet others interested in Dispute Resolution
- Make contact with judges
- Receive critical and positive feedback to improve your lawyering skills

Note: 1Ls can only participate in 1 competition per year.

Join us for the first workshop of the Lawyering in a Diverse World workshop series

Inclusion, Diversity, and Cross-Cultural Competence as a Justice Imperative Facilitated by Ada Shen-Jaffe, Senior Advisor to the Dean

Saturday, September 27, 2008
9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

Room C1 – Continental breakfast and light lunch will be served.

Ada Shen-Jaffe will facilitate an interactive work session where you will learn about and review frameworks that can strengthen your effectiveness as an advocate and a leader in an increasingly diverse and global world. We will look at some of the basic building blocks of self-awareness and “EQ” (emotional intelligence), and move on to anti-oppression frameworks relating to status, social rank and power that can help ground your work as a professional, wherever your career path takes you, in the increasingly important justice imperatives of inclusion, diversity and cross-cultural competence.

RSVP by Monday, September 22, 2008 to lawstudentevents@seattleu.edu

Former statewide director of Columbia Legal Services and Evergreen Legal Services, Ada Shen-Jaffe is known for her decades of leadership in the service of justice for the poorest and most marginalized people in society. She is a key architect of Washington's civil equal justice community and has been honored by many equal justice and legal professional organizations.

Lawyering in a Diverse World is a year-long series of relevant workshops on real-world issues of diversity to empower future lawyers for a just and humane world. This engaging series of workshops are designed to create awareness and empower you with skills and tools on a variety of issues related to diversity, and ultimately give you the competitive edge for effective lawyering in our increasingly diverse and complex world. Whether you choose to start your legal career in a solo or large-firm business or corporate practice, serve as government or public interest lawyer, or use your legal education to teach or enhance civic leadership or a business career, you will be more successful and effective if you are skilled at working with diverse groups of clients, constituents, colleagues and communities.

The Lawyering in a Diverse World workshop series is presented to you by the Access to Justice Institute, Center for Professional Development, Office of Alumni Relations, Office of Student Affairs, and the Student Bar Association.

Seattle University School of Law and the Seattle University Department of Sociology cordially invite you to a presentation by

Craig Willse
Doctoral Candidate, City University of New York

Neoliberal Governance Problems and the Invention of Chronic Homelessness

Mr. Willse's talk will take up ways of thinking about welfare policy and administration in terms of cultural knowledge production. Through an examination of recent federal policy targeting "chronic homelessness," he will suggest that the production and circulation of knowledge are central to neoliberal strategies for addressing social problems and managing "problem populations."
